UPDATE ON INTERGENERATIONAL PROGRAM

The Age is Just a Number program is an intergenerational program that brings together children and adults to learn from and connect with each other. This week, the program's participants engaged in pot plant painting, with 17 children and 8 adults taking part.

The activity allowed for creative expression and the development of new skills, as each participant decorated their own unique pot. Next week, they will plant plants in their newly decorated pots, further building on the skills they have learned.

This program will be completed at the end of the term, with only three weeks left to go. Parents will be invited to join in on the last week to celebrate the accomplishments of the program's participants in a graduation ceremony. Feedback from participants agree that this program provides a valuable opportunity for individuals of different age groups to connect and learn from each other.

Participants are excited about this program as is an important initiative that helps to bridge the gap between generations, reduce ageism, and promote greater understanding and empathy across age groups. The program's activities, like pot plant painting, provide a fun and engaging way for individuals to connect and learn from each other, making it a valuable experience for all involved.
